DR. STEPHEN S. WISE, AT THE CLEVELAND CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED PALESTINE APPEAL

One beautiful feature about Dr. Stephen S. Wise is the uneveness of the level which he maintains in the course of his public activities. Most leaders when they attain a certain height strive to stay balanced on an unvarying altitude. If need be, they will remain immobile so that they will not appear to be tilting in their consistency. They usually consolidate their eminence with a mass of crusty dignity, or if that is impossible, with a heap of porous pomposity. The world's eye must be set rigidly on a definite level to see them in all their bulking importance. Dr. Wise is one leader who does not care to stay set on the elevation to which two talents have lifted him. He has a streak of eccentricity in his make-up. There are times when he simply must tumble down to the lower plane of mediocrity or even absurdity. His admirers and his detractors get ready to give him up as a hopeless job. Then of a sudden there is a burst of luminosity, and he shoots up to an amazing height of inspired leadership.

There have been occasions when Dr. Wise said and did things which tended decidedly to lower him in the esteem of even his admirers. We could never get over the absurdity of his pretense at being a labourer in a ship-yard during the early days of the war. We could not, in all tolerance, see the wisdom of his periodic excursions into the field of Christian theology. We were obliged recently to question his taste in his medicine-show debates on Zionism with Clarence Darrow. But there have been as many and more occasions when we could not but truly admire the honesty and fearlessness of the man in standing up for principles and ideas. Dr. Wise is impulsive. When his feeling on a subject becomes strong, he will not allow considerations of decorum or policy to inhibit his flow of self-expression. His unmeditated and uncensored truthfulness in such moments raises his stature to dimensions of greatness.

At a conference of the United Palestine Appeal leaders held in Cleveland this week, Dr. Wise delivered one of his old-time fighting speeches which mark his periodic ascents to the level of real greatness. Dr. Wise spoke frankly and firmly. Zionism is in a bad way. There are many factors which contribute to this unfortunate condition. Thinking Zionists everywhere have long been aware of the situation. Only American Zionist leaders (paid officials for the most part), suffering from a sort of fatty optimism, have refused to face the facts. At the congress in Basle the feeling was general that the Zionist organization was in the throes of a severe crisis. The vast majority of the delegates were convinced that a change in the leadership was necessary. It was only the ponderous weight of American Zionist officialdom which nailed the feet of the Congress down to the ground and prevented movement of any sort. The administration was re-elected. But there was no enthusiasm for it. Despair—gloom. What will be next? Where will relief come from? American Zionists pretended to be satisfied. What had they to offer?

Now Dr. Wise came to the Cleveland conference and told them just how the Zionist organization stands. He tore away the veil of delusion which American Zionists have been weaving around the

HOLY BLOSSOM SYNAGOGUE TO INAUGURATE SUNDAY MORNING SERVICES

By RABBI FERDINAND M. ISSERMAN

This coming Sunday morning the Holy Blossom Synagogue will naugurate a Sunday morning service. This service is to replace the late Friday evening lecture services. The traditional Sabbath morning services are to be continued. In addition to the Sabbath morning and Sunday morning services there is being conducted a Friday evening half-hour twilight service. Whereas in the past but two public services a week were held in the synagogue, in the future three will be held.

We anticipate that our orthodox friends, many of them orthodox in name, but hardly in practice, will chant their jeremiads. Vehemently will they point out that this innovation is another nail in the coffin of Judaism, that we are merely imitating our neighbours, that slowly and gradually we are paving the way for the abandonment of our faith. Such blather will be heard on all sides, and righteous indignation, like foam on beer, will rise only to subside later.

Now what are the facts about a Sunday service in the synagogue? First, it is not against Jewish tradition. The pious Jew of the past, and even of the present, visits the synagogue daily. Sunday was no exception to him even though his Christian friends went to their churches that day. Holding a service on Sunday morning is not out of keeping with the most orthodox of Jewish tradition. In the case of Holy Blossom this Sunday service will be an additional one, as the Sabbath morning and Sabbath eve service will be continued. We ourselves should like to see daily services held in the synagogue, if worshippers would take advantage of them. We have no prejudice against Sunday.

Second, Sunday lecture services do not constitute an innovation for liberal or reform synagogues. In many of the large cities of the United States, such as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Cincinnati, Cleveland and Detroit, Sunday morning services have been held for many years, and Judaism has been strengthened rather than weakened by them. It is far better to have Jews come into the synagogue once a week even if it is on Sunday, rather than not at all.

Mr. Louis Marshall who is, perhaps, the leading Jewish layman in the United States, is the president of Temple Emanu-El in New York, a synagogue which has had a successful Sunday morning service for many years. Mr. Marshall is not only active in philanthropic affairs, but this president of a synagogue which has Sunday services, and which worships hatless, loves Judaism so much that he is also serving as president of a seminary for the training of orthodox rabbis. A Sunday service does not imply any weakening of Jewish loyalties.

Criticisms against innovations are inevitable. Reforms are never popular. Hysteria is more popular than reason, and epithet more effective than argument. The Sunday service at Holy Blossom will meet with opposition. That is inevitable. But whatever the critics may say, the men who sponsored and are instituting them are doing so because they believe they, thereby, can strengthen the religious sensibilities of the Jews in their community.

The Menorah Journal, hitherto published bi-monthly by the Intercollegiate Menorah Association "for the study and advancement of Jewish culture and ideals," will become a monthly magazine beginning January, 1928. It is a pleasure to help the Menorah Journal make it known that there will be twelve issues a year instead of six and why. The magazine says that it wants to bring to its readers a still richer fare of articles, stories, pictures, poetry, the best produced in Europe and Palestine, as well as America. It wants to provide more opportunity for the frank and fearless discussion, from all points of view, of the problems that confront Jews at home and abroad. It wants to encourage and sustain more scholars, writers and artists—one of the chief objects of the Menorah movement as a whole. The subscription price for the Menorah Journal is being raised from $3 a year to $5, and the address is 63 Fifth Avenue, New York City. But this increase in price cannot cover the cost of the work, so the Menorah Journal is appealing to thoughtful friends for aid and this column considers it a privilege to spread the word. The magazine belongs in a small group of the best published in America. Certainly it is the finest, the most dignified publication of the Jewish people and merits the gracious response of all who are interested in advancing the cultural. Count the homes you find it in. They have always been too few even among the people who claim to cherish Jewish culture highly. Where they can afford to take the Menorah Journal and don't, their voice must ever be hollow on the subject of Jewish ideals and culture, their study and advancement.

One of the miseries of this modern age is the way papers have of printing almost anything they want to about people. A lady will give a party, for example, and the news will get into the paper the very time she hasn't invited her husband's relatives, and there can be tears and maledictions and the rafters can shrivel, but a person is helpless just the same. On the other hand, when the leaf is sere and yellow and the opening season promises a year exactly like the last, except with the natural addition of troubles accompanying sour old age, is there anything at all so stimulating as a threat to sue for libel? Lately a Jewish lady of Toronto held the ear of a society editor as sweet as a June morning while she telephoned that she would certainly sue for libel if the REVIEW ever, ever, ever printed news of her again. It was about a reception. "I don't mind when it is for the Jewish people," said the lady, "but this was for our friends." . . . Three guesses.

Jews who are ever fearful of assimilation will find cause for joy in the founding of an exclusive Orthodox Jewish community in the Flushing section of Queen's County, New York City. In a tract of 600 lots, homes will be erected at a cost of from $10,000 to $60,000, and purchasers will sign agreements to observe Orthodox Jewish practices. There will be synagogues and Jewish schools with Jewish teachers only. The Yavna Realty Company, which is promoting the venture, says that its object is to conserve and save Jewish community life and Judaism. This proposed attempt of a group of Jews to cut itself off from its general environment sounds new and unusual, but the only major difference between it and thousands of other voluntary ghettos in this country is that this project is premeditated. The voluntary ghetto is a feature of Jewish life on this continent In all large cities in this country there are districts in which street after street is occupied practically by Jews only. There are all kinds of voluntary ghettos determined by the economic condition of the people who establish them, or by whether they are foreign-born, or native-born, or whether they are Germans, Russians, what-not. There are rich, poor and medium ghettos and the anti-assimilationists used to be afraid that they would all be swallowed up by their environments. But, de luxe or squalid, middle class or leisure class, as the ghettos are, most of the Jews in America have no social contact with the Gentile world after school days. When the Jews get too thick in a vicinity the Gentiles move out. So do the Jews. They go farther again, but they are not submerged. They hold their own. Some few would like to crash the gates of Gentile society and often make dolts of themselves doing it and are seldom really accepted at any cost, but for the most part the vast majority of Jews want to be apart. The structure of Jewish life in this country runs parallel with that of Gentile life. It touches at many important points and without friction, but there is nothing new about the ghetto. I.f.d.

Social Life in 1904—
Do You Remember?—

In Montreal Miss Augusta Levine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Levine, was married to Louis Sapery. Hyman Sapery, brother of the groom, gave the couple his home, "Braeside," 9 Durocher Street, as a wedding gift. The couple sailed for Europe. At Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue the following Religious School pupils were given books: Minnie Bernstein, Myrtle Levinson, Hattie Matts, Ida Feldstein, Etta Jacobson, Libby Cohen, Leba Livingstone, Dorothea Morris, Minnie Gorfinkle, Annie Kline, Nathan B. Cohen, Harry Levinson, Clarence Warshaftsky, Arthur Marcus, Richard Marcus, Noel Friedman, Joseph Friedman, Sara Kline, Ernestine Jacobs, Gertrude Vineberg, Eva Friedman, Ray Kert, Clarence Cohen, Lyon Levinson, Louise Wetstein, Evelyn Morris, Hattie Hyams, Nathan Glickman, Nathan Holstein, Moses Rutenberg, Annie Zweibell, Isidor Kline, Benny Bernstein, Polla Hoffman, Rosa Weiner, Lillian Levinson, Julius Harris, Minnie Rosenberg, Jacob Gross, Ruth Cohen, Sara Sperber, Elsie Workman, Myer Hyman, Hyman Bernstein, L. Miss Fannie Gurofsky, daughter of David Gurofsky, of Toronto, was killed near Wilkesbarre, Pa. She left Toronto for New York and was passing from the platform of the fourth to that of the fifth car when the drawhead broke, causing the cars to part, and she fell between the cars to the tracks. Five cars passed over her body. The news was broken to the family at midnight by Rabbi Jacobs. Burial was in Toronto. The young girl, at twenty-one years of age, was a brilliant student of the University of Toronto, in her second year. She had matriculated from Harbord Collegiate in 1902, taking courses preparatory to entering the legal profession. She was president of the Daughters of Zion, and her coffin was covered by a white silk pall worked by members. Mrs. B. Laurance, of Toronto, visited Mrs. Charles Landau, of St. John, N.B. Miss Kathryn Isaacs, of Chicago, visited the Misses Strauss. Mr. and Mrs. S. Lorie and family returned from Penetanguishene, Ontario. Mrs. G. The New Zion

By HENRY W. NEVINSON, in the "Atlantic Monthly"

I

English people who were brought up in childhood as I was are likely to know the Old and New Testaments well. Probably they know the Old Testament the better, for it is more interesting to a child, and indeed the Epistles might be cut out from the Bible altogether for anything a child would care. But the Old Testament we were trained to learn pretty nearly by heart, so far as the history of the Jews went. By constant repetition in church we learned the Psalms, too, for the words were not then blurred or rendered incomprehensible by being sung. The Prophets were as distasteful as the Epistles, but we knew the sound of their splendid sentences by hearing them read. Every morning and evening of a week day, and four times at least on Sundays, we heard a chapter read from "the Scriptures," and every day we had to repeat selected passages by heart. The Bible was, in fact, almost our only literature. Why should we seek after other writers when in the Bible we had a book written by the hand of God himself? Fairy-story tellers, poets, dramatists, historians, being uninspired, might be misleading, and at all events their works could not possibly rival the writings that were divine.

So an Englishman trained as I was in the Evangelical English Church may well possess such a knowledge of the Hebrew books called canonical as might surpass the knowledge of many a Jew. Perhaps the strangest part of the matter was that we took the Old Testament as being specially our own possession. We assumed that the promises, the threatenings and the prophecies all referred to the English people, and when every Sunday evening we sang, "To be a light to lighten the Gentiles," we thought of the Chinese and Negroes as being the Gentiles, but when we added, "And to be the glory of thy people Israel," we had no doubt that we were the people referred to. As for the Jews, we never gave them a thought, except, in one of the collects, to class them with Turks, heretics and infidels.

The consequence is that all Englishmen who were brought up in the old-fashioned religious way are familiar with the history and geography of Palestine. They know more about the ancient Hebrews than about any other people, including their own; and though the old Athenians mean far more to me than the Jews, my knowledge of Greek history is probably less accurate than my knowledge of the Old Testament. To go to Palestine is to me like a return to a traditional home. The sight of massive Hermon reminds me of the dew that fell upon the mountain. The sight of Carmel reminds me of Elijah and the still, small voice. When I cross the hills of Gilboa, I think of the king and of his son whom the Philistines slew there: "Lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their deaths they were not divided." When I see a spring of pure water (so rare in that country!) bubbling out at the foot of those hills, I remember Gideon's queer notion of separating the men who lapped of it like dogs from those who sucked it up like horses. And who can exhaust the associations called up by actual presence beside the Jordan, or in Hebron, or in Jerusalem herself?

"By the waters of Babylon we sat down and wept, when we remembered thee, O Zion." In our English country churches we sing the words with a certain pathos, vaguely identifying ourselves with the mourners, and inclined to gloat over the hideous cry for bloodthirsty vengeance with which the little psalm terminates. Very few of our congregations give a thought to the people who for nearly nineteen centuries have wept beside so many rivers far from Babylon, remembering Zion. It is only in the last few years that their passionate yearning for their ancestral and consecrated country has been granted a fresh and steadfast hope. Throughout all those centuries, it is true, an occasional Jew would struggle to Jerusalem as a pilgrim, there to live out his remaining years in study and meditation, there to join in the lamentation at the Wall of Wailing, and there to die, awaiting the Messiah's advent so long deferred. About fifty years ago some enterprising Jews from Jerusalem began to establish "colonies" in their old country, partly with the aid of Baron Edmond de Rothschild, who poured money lavishly into the cause, and the still flourishing settlements of Petah Tikvah ("Dawn of Hope"), famous for its Jaffa oranges, the neighbouring Rishon-le-Zion, famous for its wines, Rehoboth close by, Rosh Pinah, the beautiful hillside town above Lake Merom, and one or two more, prove the success of the experiment, though all are run upon the old-fashioned lines of private ownership and hired labour.

But the present Zionist movement for acquiring land in Palestine, and planting upon it towns and agricultural villages, is not yet twenty years old. My friend Israel Zangwill, whose recent loss is lamented by all who love high literature and noble enthusiasm, thinking that Palestine was already too full of Arabs and other inhabitants, sought for other lands as a Jewish national home, and consulted me upon the character of various places in Africa where I had travelled. He consulted Professor Gregory, the famous geologist of Glasgow, also, but our reports were not favourable. Nor did the Jews as a body favour any scheme for settlement outside Palestine. For it was to Palestine they were attached by all the sentiments of tradition and worship.

II

The early settlers were heroic, but they had a hard time of it. Being mainly ignorant of agriculture and unaccustomed to that kind of work, they sometimes despaired, leased their land to Arabs, or employed Arab labour on their farms. About the beginning of this century, the Jewish National Fund was founded for the purchase of land that should be inalienable Jewish property; but through ignorance, want of funds, or because the allotments were too large for one family's cultivation, the settlers worked without much hope, being harassed by the Arabs and the Turkish officials, and plagued with malaria and want of drainage. A change came with the foundation of the Palestine Land Development Company in 1908, and from that time we may date the rapid growth of the present Zionist Organization. It is now directed by the Zionist General Executive, appointed by the General Council, which in its turn is appointed by the Zionist Congress, meeting every two years, as it met in 1925 at Vienna. Vienna. Dr. Weizmann, well known in the United States through his recent visit, is Chairman of the Executive, and under the Executive work the two main practical branches of the movement—the Jewish National Fund (Keren Kayemeth), occupied entirely with the purchase of inalienable land, drainage, improvement and other preparation for settlers; and the Zionist General Fund (Keren Hayesod), which collects money, organizes immigration, allots the settlers to the various colonies, controls and promotes the Jewish education, treats with the British officials in Jerusalem, and in fact carries on all the practical work with the exception of the purchase and preparation of the land. Colonel Kisch, a sapper officer of many years' service in the British Army, is chairman.

The main principles for the present Zionist settlements are: (1) that each family should receive not more than 25 acres (100 dunums) of land, which is on lease for 49 years; (2) that all the work should be done by the settler and his family, hired labour being forbidden; (3) that the cultivation should be by mixed farming, each settlement supplying first its own provisions, the outside sale, if any, coming second; (4) that the land should be prepared beforehand by the drainage of swamps, the supply of water, and the construction of roads; (5) that the settlers should have full liberty to choose their own social system, whether individual or collective.

These are the chief rules to be observed, and a good many training schools have been established to teach the younger settlers agriculture of various kinds, and to accustom them to country life. For, as is well known, the Jews as a whole have long ceased to be an agricultural people, owing to the legal restrictions passed against them in many countries, though none the less there are a good many Jewish settlers who have practised farming before they arrive. Another custom that is almost a rule is the universal use of Hebrew among the settlers. As they come from so many different countries—Russia, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Germany and so on,—it is essential to have a common language, and, happily, nearly all Jews have some acquaintance with Hebrew, owing to their religious services and reading. The adult settlers, of course, retain their knowledge of the language prevailing in the countries where they were born, and I found that German is generally understood. But the children are brought up on Hebrew as their mother tongue, and in towns like Tel-Aviv and Haifa it is everywhere spoken and written. In fact the British Mandatory Government has declared English, Arabic and Hebrew to be the official languages, and all public announcements must be posted in all three.

The Zionist expenses are heavy. The land is always purchased from the big Arab land-owners, who hold about 40 per cent of the cultivatable land in Palestine; and, including improvements and drainage, it costs the Keren Kayemeth about $100 an acre. No rent is paid on agricultural land for the first five years, and then only two per cent. on the purchase money. (Urban land pays four per cent., and there will be a revision every ten years, so as to check the profiteering on "unearned increment.") Last autumn I was told the Fund owned about 47,000 acres, and the cost of settling each new family upon its allotment was about $4,500, apart from the cost of the journey and the purchase of the land. I suppose the total cost per family would come to pretty nearly $6,250. That is a large sum, though I believe it does not exceed the cost of settling a family on land in California or Australia. To maintain and extend the settlements large contributions from Jews all over the world must be collected. And the contributions are large, though not so large as was at first expected. I gather that the Keren Hayesod receives about $3,500,000 a year from donations, and the Keren Kayemeth about $1,500,000, so that the two branches of the Zionist Organization between them bring about $5,000,000 a year into the country. A large proportion of this sum may be called capital expenditure, though at a low rate of interest, and a large proportion goes to the Arab land-owners who are always ready to offer more land for sale than there is Jewish money to purchase. About one-third of the contributions comes from Jews in America, and the proportion from English Jews is small. In any case it will obviously be difficult to maintain so large a subscription unless the enthusiasm for the Zionist cause can also be maintained.

The famous "Balfour Declaration" of November 2, 1927, stated that "His Majesty's Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavours to facilitate the achievement of this object." That Declaration greatly encouraged the earlier Zionist hope, and the present rapidly growing movement may almost be said to have started from the Declaration's date. Its object is simply to create a national home for the Jews in Palestine, not to convert Palestine into a Jewish country, as the Arabs feared, and as certain English officials and clergy still pretend to believe. The total of the Jewish population is now about 150,000, as against some 700,000 or 800,000 Arabs, and only about one-tenth of the cultivable land is owned by the Jewish race, while it is estimated that something like 4,000,000 population could find good livelihood in Palestine if the land were properly developed. As it is, the permissible quota of Jewish immigrants is arranged twice each year between the Palestine Government and the Zionist Executive in Jerusalem. The Keren Hayesod keeps offices in the main capitals of Europe to which intending immigrants must make application. The most suitable up to the due quota are then selected, lodged for a time at Jaffa or Haifa, and then allotted to the colonies best fitting their capacity. Young men and women accustomed to agriculture are chosen in preference, for the main purpose of Zionism is to cultivate the ancestral land. The Keren Hayesod binds itself to find work or give support to every immigrant for the first year, so that no burden may fall upon the Government.

In Jerusalem a great Jewish university is being slowly developed, mainly on medical and scientific lines, combined with a great Jewish library, and Jewish settlements are being rapidly built in the rocky suburbs to the north and west of the ancient city. But otherwise the chief urban populations of Jews are living at Haifa and at Tel-Aviv, the expanding suburb of Jaffa. Tel-Aviv has developed rapidly, perhaps too rapidly. Sixteen years ago some 600 people were living along the sand hills where now is a city of some 43,000 souls—a modern and advanced city in every respect, with banks, hotels and factories largely worked by electricity under the Rutenberg scheme, which in a few years' time will have spread electric power all over Palestine, generated by the small but sufficient stream of the Jordan. When I was there last autumn the town was suffering from a crisis of unemployment, due partly to overbuilding, partly to the departure of many useful citizens to their homes in Poland, where they had to look after their relations and property during disturbances in that country. But this will for the most part return, and as productive work increases in the country the unemployment will diminish. Tel-Aviv is a city of hope, and nearly all its inhabitants are under thirty years of age. Jews, a persistent race.

But I think it is probable that Haifa will presently outstrip Tel-Aviv as a Jewish city. Already it possesses very considerable manufactures, schools and trade.

Jew or Briton, but one can understand their apprehension.

It is more difficult for me to understand the hostility of many English people in Palestine toward Zionism. That hostility takes two forms: official and religious. Many high officials, perhaps most, acquiesce in the Balfour Declaration, and do their utmost to carry it out, seeing that it represents the will of the British Government. But there are others who object to "the intrusion" of Jews into what they are inclined to regard as a British and Arab reserve. An Englishman like myself may perhaps sympathize with their feeling; for we are all brought up to dislike and despise Jews as a race, and we are particularly good at governing "natives," so long as they remain quiet and submissive, as the Palestinian Arabs usually do. We enjoy a subject people whom we can treat as good dogs, feed well, order about, and pat kindly on the head when they are quiet and obey without hesitation. We cannot treat the immigrant highly educated Jews from Germany, Poland or Russia so, and therefore the officials complain of them as "aggressive," assertive and troublesome. It is a natural complaint, but the cause is really laudable.

Far more difficult to explain or remove is the hostility of the religious English residents—especially, of course, the Anglican clergy. One would have expected them to love and befriend the race which, after all, has given them their main idea of the God they worship, and from among whom sprang the sacred Person whom they regard as actually Divine. The facts are far otherwise. It was among the members of the Anglican Church that I found the most marked hostility to all Jews, but especially to Zionists, who are endeavouring to return to a land which the history of the Jews has consecrated in the estimation of all Anglicans and other Christians. The hostility is rancourous and envenomed. Though I have known many Anglicans, it rather astonished me. But theological hatred swelters in hearts beyond the reach of reason. I need hardly add that the Roman Catholics are opposed alike to Zionists and to the "Protestant" British administration.

There are now about a hundred Zionist settlements in Palestine, and within the last few months I have visited a large proportion of them. Before I started, my knowledge of the country and its Jewish history was rather unusually intimate, as I have explained; but like most Englishmen I certainly had no prejudice in favour of the Jews. Rather the reverse, though though I have always admired their exceptional intelligence, their patriotic mutual aid, and their marvelous persistence in the face of the cruelest persecution. But as I surveyed the work of the Zionist cause in tangible or visible form I was filled with a sympathetic exhilaration at the sight of so many young men and young women released from the perpetual fear under which their fathers had suffered for so many centuries; able to follow their own chosen way of life without restrictions; able to enjoy the light of the sun and the beauty of the sea, as I saw one Sabbath day upon the beach of Tel-Aviv; and able, as I saw in their communal villages, to work side by side in hope, no longer trammeled by the petty regulations and obsolete observances of an oppressive past.

RUDDY CANADIAN APPLES FOR OVERSEAS

"What shall I send the folks in the old country?" is a query heard as the holiday season approaches, but if the average Canadian realized how much our big, juicy, red apples are appreciated and enjoyed by people overseas, the problem would be immediately solved.

Canada's luscious rosy apples are relished by young and old alike. They symbolize our brilliant sunshine and warm summer days and they do look Christmasy and cheerful. Northern Spies, McIntosh Reds and Baldwins are the best and the most popular to carry your kind thoughts and good wishes across the sea and standard boxes and barrels of choice hand-picked and hand-packed fruit. Government inspected, are procurable at reasonable prices from any grocer, while the matter of shipment is as simple as the mailing of a card. The Canadian National Express will call for your apples, transport and deliver them by quick service to any station in Great Britain, Ireland and most European countries.

The transportation charge from Montreal and Quebec up to November 15 or from Saint John and Halifax thereafter, by direct steamer to points in Great Britain, Ireland and the Channel Islands is $3.10 per standard box and $6.20 per standard barrel, including refrigeration.

For rates to Canadian ports, through rates to continental stations and other particulars, consult any Canadian National Express agent.

CONSTRUCTION OF JAFFA AND HAIFA HARBOURS

Out of the sum of four and a half million pounds, the loan granted by the British Government to Palestine, over a million pounds have been set aside for harbour construction. The contract for the improvements to be made in the Jaffa harbour has already been awarded to an engineering firm and work will start there very shortly. The work on the Haifa harbour, a much more elaborate affair, which will cost about a million pounds, will not be begun until next April. According to a plan drawn up by a London engineer, the Haifa harbour will have a custom house, railway lines and an equipment sufficient for the trade of to-day and any extension which may reasonably be expected within the next few years. The drainage works at the mouth of the River Kishon at Haifa have been started. Nearly two hundred workers have been engaged through the Haifa Workers' Council. The drainage work will provide them with employment for about four months.

CAN YOU HELP HER?

A young woman of Detroit writes as follows: I am a young mother, nineteen years old. I have a baby two and a half months old. My husband left me over a foolish and unnecessary quarrel. I want him to come back and forget. I couldn't look for him, being ill myself, so he hasn't returned nor written to me. I wish to beg of you, Sir, a favour, that through your help I may be able to locate him. I am unable to work and cannot pay the expense of an advertisement. But my only hope for his return is through your help in the papers of Toronto. My son is a weak baby and the doctor will not allow me to wean the baby so I have to nurse him. So you understand, dear sir, the circumstances I am in. My family is poor though they are trying to give me nourishing food. If you will be kind enough, take an interest in my plea and take my word of honour that everything I have written is the truth. This advertisement in the paper is my only hope, so please, kind sir, do the best you can for me. If you will put the following statement in: "Mrs. Weiss has asked the Toronto papers to help locate her husband. She and the baby are ill and need him. They want him to come home at once. Please wire at once to Mrs. H. J. Weiss, 933 E. Holbrook Avenue, Detroit, Mich."

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

AN INTERDENOMINATIONAL ARMISTICE DAY SERVICE

Mayor Foster of Toronto has adopted the suggestion made through the editorial columns of THE CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW that the service at the cenotaph on Armistice Day in memory of the fallen soldiers be an interdenominational one. The Catholics, we understand, have refused to take part because of religious reasons. All other groups will be represented at the service. Our community is made up of many religious denominations, and at community religious functions, all religions should be represented. We hope that this service will help to demonstrate the unity which underlies all religious differences. Fundamentally, religions are one, as is God.

SHECHITAH QUESTION IN POLAND

The guild of the Christian slaughterers of cattle in Poland sent a memorial to the Ministry of Agriculture, drawing attention to the "cruelty of Shechitah" and to the competition of the Jewish butchers in underselling on parts of the cattle unfit for Jewish use. The Ministry of Agriculture agreed with the opinions expressed in the memorandum, but the Ministries of the Interior and Education were opposed to the prohibition of Shechitah. The Warsaw Municipal Executive, which was sounded by the Ministry of Agriculture on the matter, was also divided in its opinion. The manager of the slaughter houses in Warsaw submitted a report entirely in favour of Shechitah so that it is possible that the matter will not be brought up for action at the present time.

Arthur Schnitzler has debonairly weathered all the storms of his world. Perhaps a philosphical pamphlet he has just brought out offers the explanation. "Der Geist im Wort under der Geist in der Tat" (S. Fischer, Berlin) is an astonishingly cold and abstract bit of theorizing. Physician and the descendant of Talmudists, he has preserved a central calm and a magnificent objectivity. Hence one is not surprised at another of those surgical novelettes which have been so successful in America. "Spiel im Morgengrauen" (S. Fischer, Berlin) has all his usual lucidity and finesse of execution. But the subject is painful rather than tragic.

situation. What is the use of deluding ourselves?

All Zionist observers have long come to the conclusion that the British Government has not been carrying out the spirit of the Balfour Declaration. On November 2nd, 1917, Lord Balfour, speaking on behalf of the British Government, made a solemn pledge to the Jewish people that Great Britain would do all in its power to facilitate the establishment of a Jewish National homeland in Palestine. Great Britain has not been doing everything it could to bring about this end. It has done a great many things to thwart the Jewish hopes and efforts. The Jewish people have been patient. They felt their helplessness. They were eager to make allowances for the British dereliction. Weizmann, knowing his impotence, has sought to explain and justify the conduct of the mandatory power. But the sound instinct of the Jewish public has finally sensed that an injustice is being done the Jewish people. At the last Congress the muzzle placed on it by the administration was wrenched away, and its voice of dissatisfaction and protest was lifted. Now came Stephen Wise at Cleveland, and raised the cardinal issue afresh. The pent-up feeling of disappointment was given expression in his resonant utterance. The hesitant, halting tone of Weizmann gave way to the ringing accusatory voice of Wise.

The cringing policy of the administration as regards the conduct of the mandatory power is of a piece with its general ineptitude in dealing with the realities of the present situation. Wise is one of the leaders of world Zionism.

At the Congress he could not go the whole distance with Jabotinsky or Gruenbaum or the extremist parties which criticized the administration, but he was too keen and too sincere not to realize the tremendous force of the criticisms which were levelled against the leadership. He could not do what the American officials did—hide his head in the sand and imagine that all was well with Zionism. There is no reason why American Zionism should live in a fool's paradise. Wise took advantage of the opportunity at Cleveland to say some plain words to American Zionists. Zionism has been regressing in America during the past few years. The shallow optimism of the leaders is unfounded. The malady which has the world Zionist organization in its grip has not left American Zionism unscathed. American Zionists must be prepared to face the stern facts of the situation.

The warning sounded by Wise is timely. The scheme of Jewish existence involves the Zionist presuppositions and necessitates the Zionist experiment. It is not doing a service to the Jewish cause to refuse to recognize the true state of affairs in Zionism. Dr. Wise's frank diagnosis does not savour of defeatism. To know the ailment does not mean to become discouraged and give up hope. On the contrary it is essential that Zionists should have an intelligent understanding of the circumstances surrounding their movement. And knowledge of the truth should serve as a stimulus to greater determination and fruit-bearing effort. American Zionists have an important role to play in Zionism. It behooves them to shake off their attitude of arrogant servility towards the world Zionist leadership and meet the problems with candor and courage.
